As probably the entirety of "Westerwood" knows, I was the one who finally went to the city about Charlotte Reese who got cops in her pockets in return. I think it's important people know that because she is crazy; it's also clear who doesn't have cops in their pockets in Greensboro, NC. I know I don't although I have had police in Catawba County all the way from Greensboro--the GPD's biggest attempt at ruining me more, their contacting me in Valley Hills Mall which was identical to how I was contacted in Greensboro until I took a baseball bat to a kid in a mini-van sent there by Charlotte Reese and the City of Kotis Properties. One of Reese's hang-ups as she dominated the traffic median of Aberdeen and Mimosa for years was her nastiness towards people who weren't white. Reese was an admitted racist who once casually told me black males were "All a bunch of monkeys, anyway" but what the city did was turn around and give her police because that's how it does business. One of her hobbies was glaring people down as they drove down Mimosa Drive--they weren't white making it a targeted idea and concept. In her mind she probably felt they didn't "belong" there. They were in the "wrong neighborhood." It's hard to "plant flowers" and glare down someone driving by simultaneously. How that crazy bitch sees the world will, though, clearly never be known but I know how she sees some of it.

Reese saw people who aren't actually human; she sees people who aren't fully developed and are therefore, beneath her. It's why I hated whenever Reese even came close to the property line; if she stood on the property, which happened here and there, I lost it altogether. I didn't want to be associated with that feeling so strongly about it that after recommendations from the GPD itself, I got quasi-legal on her which triggered her establishment buddies and the corrupt GPD to bail her out of everything they got caught doing; GCSO under Barnes put a foot into the upper class--like Kim Maynard, some asshole handy-man I never saw before, who lied to the GPD after I pulled him, who, in truth, kept coming to the property in attempts to put me in jail, Maynard soon afterwards moving and later dying in South Carolina and especially Charlotte Reese did GCSO handle carefully. They immediately knew was crazy before even going out there and they did several times; they made sure she got the message. Now all of a sudden she was never at home. But she couldn't hide from county. GCSO immediately asked me "Does she have mental issues?" I didn't have to answer and didn't because they were already in tune with reality. A black deputy serving Reese--right in front of her Community Watch buddy Gail Barger, who also got served after getting involved in trying to bait me into jail--and right in front of the Greensboro Police Department did the both of them get it, the GPD denying all of that entirely, saving the both of them--that deputy serving Reese was her just desserts I said nothing about but I can imagine how she felt at the time. Like the "slap" scene "In the Heat of the Night" is what was probably going through her mind. The City of Greensboro did all it could to save a crazy person but not entirely.

As I had claimed all along, Reese was charged with "DC" for going full-tilt on police which is what she did with others and was never going to do with me. I told her she would pay for coming out of her house to scream at me so went to the city and told you. Someone who doesn't live in Westwood knows the finer points after they brought-up Barack Obama while talking to Reese which a lot of people did and probably still do, she was always out there because she was crazy and could do nothing else like hold a job because she was crazy; that guy who lives across from Benjamin Parkway told me Reese had a nasty reaction to who POTUS was at the time. What the city did, though, was save her, because she was white, knew all the wrong people, had a nice house, whatever, giving her police and many of them, and Andrew Swofford, too, who, like Reese, is also a low-life. Probably Reese's finest accomplishment as she "planted flowers" was chasing down an old couple and screaming in their face. I saw that from my place, after hearing it first, a few properties away from her house did she go ape-shit on old people who had done nothing to her, but I did nothing about it but watch--those people snapped right back into her. I considered, though, chasing Reese back home for that--it was my final straw with Charlotte Reese, her racism the beginnings of my stepping off from her permanently. She was clearly the inferior one. As time went on, she only got crazier. There are those who believe Reese's only reason for being in the same spot nearly all year long is to start trouble. I think those people are right although I did not think that before. I knew she was crazy, anything she did was never a surprise--like lying about her name which was really "Sutton" when things headed to the courthouse which was an inevitability.

Every black officer--and especially "Skip" Alston who has kept me away from and out of the NAACP--should know the finer points of their stupidity. The City of Greensboro's obsession with money Trumps all aw
